Coleridge's Imagination.

From his early youth Coleridge lived in a world of books and dreams, yet his favorite walk seems to have been the Strand, the last place in the world for a poet to lose himself in reverie. As he strolled down the street he imagined himself swimming the Hellespont, the feat of which other poets had written and which the poet Byron was to accomplish later. Once while the mind of Coleridge was thus far from the busy Strand he absently thrust his hands before him in the manner of one swimming. Suddenly one hand came in contact with a gentleman's pocket.

The gentleman, thinking to capture a thief, seized the hand and exclaimed: "What! So young and so wicked!" He accused the poor, poetic boy of an attempt at pocket picking.

With some fright and a few tears the boy explained, and we can imagine that words did not fail him who was to become the most brilliant talker of his age. The gentleman was delighted with Coleridge's imagination, which could turn the Strand into the Hellespont. The intelligence of the young Leander made the stranger inquire into Coleridge's tastes, and when he found the boy liked books he opened for him a subscription at the circulating library in Cheapside.—Westminster Gazette.

The Facetious Traveler.

"How did you like Pittsburg?"

"It soots me."

"Do you think Boston is a great city?"

"It has bean."

"Did you find Philadelphia the place of sleep they say it is?"

"Not for me. Everybody else snored so loud I couldn't."

"Is Washington a good place to live in?"

"Capital."

"How did you find Chicago?"

"Didn't have to. It was there when I arrived."

"How were the mountains back of Denver?"

"Rocky."

"How did they treat you in New Orleans?"

"All the time."

"Well, I'm glad to see you're back."

"How does it look?"

"How does what look?"

"My back. I've never seen it."

It was then that the assault took place, but the court on hearing the evidence decided that it was justifiable.—Judge.

An Organ Recital.

A dozen or more women had gathered at a home on Walnut street to attend a business meeting of a society to which they belonged. Before they commenced to talk business one of the women had to tell everybody about her recovery from a recent operation for appendicitis. After she got through it reminded another of an operation she had gone through a few years ago for the same thing, and it took some time to tell about it. That reminded a third of an operation she had once gone through, and when she finished telling it another of the visitors started to tell her experience on the operating table.

At this moment a quiet little woman in one corner of the room arose to go.

"I thought," she explained to her hostess, "that this was to have been a business meeting, but it seems to be an organ recital."—Philadelphia Times.

The Key of Death.

The "key of death" is apparently a large key which is shown among the weapons at the arsenal at Venice. It was invented by Tibaldo, who, disappointed in love, designed this instrument for the destruction of his rival. The key is so constructed that the handle may be turned around, revealing a small spring, which being pressed a very fine needle is driven with considerable force from the other end. This needle is so very fine that the flesh closes over the wound immediately, leaving no mark, but the death of the victim is almost instantaneous.

Strong Paper.

A single United States treasury note measures three and one-eighth inches in width and seven and one-quarter inches in length. It will sustain without breaking lengthwise a weight of forty-one pounds, crosswise a weight of ninety-one pounds. The notes run four to a sheet, a sheet being eight and one-quarter inches wide by thirteen and one-half inches long. One of these sheets lengthwise will suspend 108 pounds and crosswise 177 pounds.

Evasion.

"See here, you, sir!" cried her father "Didn't I tell you never to enter my house again?"

"No, sir, you didn't," replied the persistent suitor. "You said not to 'cross your threshold,' so I climbed in the window."—Exchange.

Then He Wouldn't Have It.

"How much of an income do you think you could live on comfortably?"

"I think I could manage to be very comfortable on about $10,000 a year until my wife found out that I was getting that much."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Careful.

"Don't you try to hurry me, young man. I don't never sign nothin' that I ain't read carefully."—Life.

Letting Them Worry

A Case Where the Old Folks Were Entirely Too Willing

By LOUISE OLNEY

Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Perplexed, he gazed at Sallie. Her blue eyes flashed welcome, but her words turned him down. All summer she had been refusing to be seen with him. This time it was the club dance. As they had been friends from babyhood, he asked for reasons.

"Sallie, what's the matter? If you really hate the sight of me I'll keep away if it kills me, but somehow I don't believe you do. What have I done? Or is it Tracy, or don't you care, or what?" In the little summer house he faced her, his dark eyes snapping. She tossed her fair head, but her face was serious.

"Tracy, indeed! You ought to see he's crazy about Mary Trevor! No; you have not done anything, Robbie, only"— She fingered her rose in embarrassment.

"Only what, Sallie? Tell me. I can't stand this much longer."

"Well, I should think you would hate it, too, this being—managed."

"Referring to our precious families' very apparent plot to get us married? That certainly is the limit!" He spoke coolly. She nodded, flushing with anger as he continued: "I don't blame you, Sallie. I hate it too. I"— But she turned on him like a little tiger, leaping to her feet to face him.

"Why don't you go away then? Do you think that I—are you asking me everywhere because you think I"— For answer he swept her suddenly into his arms, holding her face to his—a happy face, for she had always loved Robert Martin.

"Dear, you must know I want you—now, always! But why couldn't our people be decently reluctant? It's all so horribly planned! We both hate being maneuvered into marriage. Mother suffers even if I look at Mary—sweet girl, but not you."

"And dad gets apoplectic at mere sight of Tom—Tom, who is everything dad and I don't want—but when he and mother greet me at breakfast with that repressed haven't you-got-something-to-tell-us air I could gleefully announce Tom as their future son. That would be real revenge. Not that Tom wants me." The two looked up just in time to see Sallie's mother carefully steering the children away from the summer house. It was maddening. Sallie stamped her foot.

"I simply can't be engaged to you, Bob, with the family smiling benignly and all the old pussies purring over the fitness of the match! I can't!"

"Wait till you're asked," he retorted, grinning. "Sallie, we want each other, but we must let them worry. They simply must worry awhile! Did you know that poor old Tracy hates me because he thinks I want Mary?"

"Stupid boy! Anybody could see where her heart is by the way she hates me when I chasten dad by going out with Tom. Wonder why he asks me."

"To get even because I play Mary's little lamb to bother mother. You see, Mary's family goes no farther back than Adam. I suppose yours and mine antedate old Eden. I say, Sallie"— But he saw Tom Tracy going past with his machine and ran after him with a shout. The two men talked a long time before Robert came back to Sallie.

"Get your veil and things and come for a spin. We'll stop for Mary, have lunch at some little town, have dinner at Baxter, call on my minister uncle John and get home by moonlight."

"And a chaperon?" Though the four had always known each other, Sallie was going at least to mention proprieties. Bob's wise eye twinkled.

"I think I can hunt up a young married woman somewhere," he remarked, but refused explanation till Tracy left the car to persuade Mary. Then Bob did his gallant best to make things clear. He succeeded. Sallie got in front with Tom, leaving Mary to an apparently all too devoted Bob, while they paraded past their respective homes, for be it said that the Trevors and the Traceys had long wished Mary and Tom to like each other.

It was rather too late that night to please Sallie's father when Tom left her reluctantly at her own door. And Bob, mother questioned, said he had been motoring with Mary.

That was the beginning. During August the four were inseparable, and the parents worried. The only apparent comfort was that the couples remained together. How could they know that partners were changed the minute they got from under surveillance? The girls were airy, radiant, innocent, the young men calm, impervious to comment or question. Never passing the bounds of propriety, they still baffled home attempts to regulate their movements.

Tom was always with Sallie, Bob in the wake of Mary. The couples weren't matched to suit the elders; but, from fearing they were engaged, they began to fear they were not. This was because the young people were beginning to excite social comment by reason of several escapades, obviously innocent, apparently accidental. They all came home one day dripping wet from overturning their canoes and swimming out, and another night they walked home ten miles after the motor broke down—by arrangement. It was first one thing, then another. Finally the parents compared notes. They decided that there was only one thing to be done—interview the four together and insist on less public devotion or an announcement of engagements.

The young people knew of this, and the evening the council was to occur at Sallie's home they promptly absented themselves. The meeting began, and after much polite sparring it was decided to make the best of the Tom-and-Sallie and Rob-and-Mary arrangements. The old folks showed a touching resignation. All they would insist on was a knowledge of the facts.

At this juncture Tom and Sallie strolled in, followed by the other two, all showing delightful surprise at the parental presence.

"It looks like a council of war," commented Tom, while his father glowered, and then began the attack, followed by Sallie's father and the interpolations of the others.

"If you are engaged," Mrs. Trevor finished, "we insist on having it properly announced. If you are not—well, you ought to be. I hope you understand our point of view."

A silence followed, broken only by a nervous little giggle—the giggle Mrs. Martin would not like in a daughter-in-law. Finally it was Bob who spoke as the four stood under the chandelier in the usual couples.

"We are sorry—not for ourselves, but for you—that we are not engaged. We fully appreciate your assembled wishes. But we don't see how we can be engaged. It is, in fact, impossible." He looked at Tom to finish, and that young man rose to the occasion. He was even a bit dramatic as he faced the four fathers, the four mothers, sitting in stern conclave, but visibly softened by the well bred, beautiful young quartet before them, young people charming and, after all, old enough to know their own minds. Thomas spoke to his own mother.

"The fact is, we all hate nonsense. We hate planned matches, and being engaged to order with diamond rings to advertise the fact, and the society pussies purring and fashionable weddings preceded by 'showers' of stuff that only a fire or some other special dispensation of Providence can rid you of. And then"—he took a lawyer-like tone befitting the junior partner of the firm of Tracy & Tracy, "we cannot be engaged because"—he paused for effect and got it, for a sudden suspicion sent the parents as one to their feet—"because we are already married," he finished leisurely, "a month ago at he finished leisurely. "A month ago at Baxter, by Robert's uncle John, who also hates fuss and feathers." With a quick movement Tom moved—past Sallie—and took Mary by the hand, leading her to his mother, and Bob had Sallie by both hands, looking at her only, forgetting the others.

And when it finally became evident to the bewildered families that the right children were together, that Sallie had married Robert, that Tom had married Mary, the relief went far on the way to forgiveness for the elopement.

"But why elope?" Sallie's father finally asked. "I think I may say for my friends that these marriages will make us ultimately happy—that they are, in fact, just what we desired. What was the real trouble? We were all quite willing." But a chorus of laughter greeted him—happy young laughter.

"That was just the trouble. You were too willing!" It was Sallie who had spoken from the shelter of her young husband's arm. Then everybody laughed.

Obeying Orders.

When Luther W. Hopkins joined the Confederate army he was a lad of seventeen, one of the boys who made Thomas Jonathan Jackson "Stonewall Jackson" and who bore a noble part in the conflict. In "From Bull Run to Appomattox" Mr. Hopkins recalls some of the thoughts and acts of his first night on a battlefield.

"We were ordered to 'sleep on our arms' the night whose dawn was to usher in the battle. I had heard a good deal about soldiers obeying orders. I thought of the boy who 'stood on the burning deck,' so when I lay down that night, with old Mother Earth for a bed, I stretched myself out at full length on top of my musket. It was a little rough, but the mere thought of being a soldied and 'sleeping on my arms' on the eve of battle made my bed feel as soft as a bed of roses.

"And then the gun! It was an old flintlock musket minus the flint and no powder or ball. But I was at least a soldier and had a gun and would surely see the battle and write home about it. A soldier seldom thinks he will be among the slain. He may be wounded or taken prisoner, but it is always the other fellow who is going to be killed."

Curious Telegraph Lines.

The most original telegraph line in the world once extended from La Plaz, the capital of Bolivia, to the neighboring town of Oruro, a distance of about 156 miles. There are no growing trees in this part of the world, and wood of any kind is so rare that the telegraph poles were made of the same material as the natives' household furniture—dried mud. The pillars were built on stone foundations and measured about five feet square at the base, with a tapering height of fifteen feet. They were placed about 360 feet apart. Another curious telegraph line was constructed in Uganda by a British engineer, who transported growing trees to the roadside and used them as poles because he could not find any "dead" wood that would withstand the ravages of the white ants. In Dutch East India growing trees are also turned to account in this manner, but there a wire is stretched across the road between the trees on either side and the actual telegraph line suspended down the center.

The Art of Saving.

I believe that if somebody could invent unique ways of saving money the public would have an assured future. Men, women and children would regard saving as a game and play it with all their heart. There are penny savings banks where newsboys and bootblacks carry their tiny savings, but other children regard their penny bank at home with unfriendly eyes. There are working girls who put away their five cent pieces and fatten their small bank accounts by walking instead of riding and making other petty sacrifices. But the majority of working girls spend as fast as they can earn and declare that they cannot help it.

One reads of a man who began his career by regarding every dollar as a worker and getting all the profit he could. With that quaint conceit in his head saving became a pleasure, and he won riches without realizing that it was a struggle. I know of more than one woman who receives each night from her husband every dime he has received in change through the day, for he is careful to avoid spending such a piece of money. These, with her own savings in the same direction, make a respectable weekly showing.—Kansas City Journal.

Only Seeking Information.

The average New York boy is not a wonder of wit and wisdom, but most of them know a good thing when they see it. Also the contrary. Not long ago one of them saw a sign in front of a Sixth avenue place, "Boy Wanted." He was looking for something of that kind and walked in. There was nobody in sight, and he stood gazing. Presently the proprietor, a most grouchy person, appeared.

"What do you want here?" he inquired with scant courtesy.

"Well," replied the boy, disturbed by the man's manner and hesitating, "do you want a boy here?"

"That's what the sign says, don't it?" snapped the man.

"Yep," responded the boy, getting his second wind.

"Then we want a boy."

"Aw right," grinned the boy, backing away. "You git one. You can't have me," and he wiggled his fingers at the man and went out quickly.—New York Herald.

Tire Themselves Getting Ready.

Washington Irving tells a story of a man who tried to jump over a hill. He went back so far to get his start for the great leap and ran so hard that he was completely exhausted when he came to the hill and had to lie down and rest. Then he got up and walked over the hill. A great many people exhaust themselves getting ready to do their work. They are always preparing. They spend their lives getting ready to do something which they never do. It is an excellent thing to keep improving oneself, to keep growing, but there must be a time to begin the great work of life. I know a man who is almost forty years old who has not yet decided what he is going to do. He has graduated from college and taken a number of postgraduate courses, but all along general lines. He has not yet begun to specialize. This man fully believes he is going to do great things yet. I hope he may.—Success Magazine.

The Paper They Were Written On.

The average author would probably laugh at the statement that at one time in the world's history manuscripts, simply as such, irrespective of the nature of the text, were immensely valuable. In ancient times manuscripts were important articles from a commercial point of view. They were excessively scarce and were preserved with the utmost care. Even the usurers were glad to lend money on them when the owners were obliged to offer them in pawn. It is related in an ancient tome that a student of Pavia, who was reduced by his debaucheries, raised a new fortune by leaving in pawn a manuscript of a body of law, and a grammarian who was ruined by a fire rebuilt his house with two small volumes of Cicero through the ready aid of the pawnbroker.

Highest Cross In the World.

The highest cross in the world is said to be that which caps the loftiest peak of the Harz mountains. The cross is in reality a tower, and it commands a magnificent view of the country around. The height of the tower is 120 feet, and it stands on a mountain 1,731 feet above the sea level. A stair of 200 steps leads to the top of the cross, but there is an elevator of which people may avail themselves who for any reason wish to avoid the long climb.

Grateful.

Young Lady—Give me one yard of—why, haven't I seen you before? Draper's Assistant—Oh, Maud, have you forgotten me? I saved your life at the seaside last summer. Young Lady (warmly)—Why, of course you did. Then you may give me two yards of the ribbon, please.—Illustrated Bits.

Lettuce Salad With Fried Cheese.

Dress the lettuce in the usual way with French dressing. Have a milk cheese, rather dry, cut in strips like French fried potatoes, dip the strips in beaten egg, roll them in fine bread crumbs and drop them into boiling fat to brown as quickly as possible. Serve with the lettuce.—Boston Post.

Passing Events.

Time is a sort of river of passing events, and strong is its current. No sooner is a thing brought to light than it is swept by and another takes its place, and this, too, will be swept away.—Marcus Aurelius.

Vengeance should be left to women.—Petrarch.

The Sewer Question.

At Wednesday's meeting of the City Trustees initiatory steps were taken to provide Sonoma with a system of sewerage. This was a most timely move on the part of Mayor Breitenbach and his fellow members as this town needs a sewer system and needs it badly. The main question on which the proposition hinges is the cost, and a committee of the Board has been appointed to look into the matter. If the town can be provided with a good sewer system at anything like a figure satisfactory to our taxpayers and without expensive and senseless lawsuits let us have it by all means.

Eph. Weiss, the expert refractionist and optician of San Francisco, will be in Sonoma at the Union Hotel, Dec. 2nd.

The concrete foundation of the Masonic Temple in this place has been completed and is now ready for the superstructure. When finished the building will be a credit to Temple Lodge and will add much to the appearance of the town.

The Sonoma resident who does not feel like swearing at the hour of the arrival of the morning train from San Francisco, may be accounted a good Christian. The means of getting in touch with the outside world is withheld from the business men until practically half the day is gone, and the newspapers published in the metropolis before breakfast are unknown here until almost at noon hour.

SCHOCKEN SELLS QUARRIES TO BIG CORPORATION.

Will Take Possession at Once---Rock-Crushing Plant Will be Installed and Many Men Given Employment.

A big deal, which Oscar Weber has been negotiating the past year, was consummated Wednesday, whereby the Natoma Consolidated Company of California, a twenty-five million dollar corporation, acquires control of the seventy acres of land on Battery Hill, overlooking the town on the north and known as the Schocken quarries.

The big corporation, which has acquired this property at a cost of many thousands of dollars, is the owner of gold dredgers in Oroville and Folsom, rock-crushing plants at Fair Oaks and other points and with big interests in Marysville, Sacramento and Natoma, will take hold of the Schocken proposition in this place at once.

Rock-crushers with a capacity of 1 000 tons a day will be installed and the crushed rock and basalt block industry will be pushed to the limit by the big corporation.

A spur track will also be constructed from the Northwestern Pacific railroad to the eastern base of Battery Hill in order to facilitate the shipping of the product of the quarries to San Francisco and other bay cities.

The Natoma Consolidated of California, in which Messrs. Schocken and Weber are heavy bondholders, will employ over a hundred men in the quarries as soon as the rock-crushing plant is installed. This number may be increased after operations have fairly commenced and Sonoma may expect a genuine boom in the near future, as this deal will surely be followed by another that will give our people an electric railway service.

Mr. Oscar Weber, who negotiated the sale of the Schocken quarries and interested the big corporation in the property, is deserving of great credit for his push and enterprise. Particularly is this so when it is taken into consideration that he went about the business quietly without asking financial assistance from our citizens to help a business project along that is fraught with so much importance to both town and valley.

Joe Kiser Meets With Painful Accident.

Joe Kiser, the well-known young farmer of Schellville, while hoisting baled hay into a barn on his ranch, one day this week, met with a painful accident. He was using a block and tackle and while one of the bales was suspended in the air by some mischance his left thumb got caught in a pully and the flesh was stripped clear to the bone before he could extricate it. It required five stitches of a surgeon's needle to replace the torn piece of flesh. Dr. Hays, who attended to the injured thumb, reports the member as healing nicely and that it will be as good as ever in a few weeks.

Basket Ball.

Saturday evening, October 16th, in Union Hall, the boys of our local High School and a team from the Napa High will line up in a game of basket ball. This will be the first game of the season and it promises to be a very exciting one.

THIS LOOKS LIKE REAL BUSINESS.

Contract Let for a Thirty-Mile Extension of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad.

At last work is to be resumed by the Northwestern Pacific people on the 100-mile gap that will connect Sherwood with Eureka by rail.

The contract for building a portion of the extension from Sherwood to Pepperwood has been let by the railroad people to the I. X. L. Construction Company, and work on closing the gap will be commenced right away and hurried to completion.

The building of this thirty miles of road from Sherwood to Pepperwood will tax the ingenuity of the railway engineers. The survey traverses a very rough and mountainous country and at one point a tunnel over a quarter of a mile in length will have to be bored through solid rock.

President Payson declared a short time ago that the thirty miles of construction contracted for out of a two million dollar appropriation would probably be prosecuted south from Shively to the Eel river crossing at Dyerville and north to the Covelo bridge. It is proposed to complete the grade and lay four miles of track on the extension contracted for before next spring.

Obeyed the "Call of the Wild."

C. H. Crawford of Park Tyrone, near Santa Rosa, was for seven years the owner of a pet deer, which during that period was as docile as any domestic animal. One day last week the animal, which had been confined in an enclosure expressly built for him, was turned loose into the large orchard to give him more liberty. The deer after running at large a short time obeyed the "call of the wild" and viciously attacked Mr. Crawford, who was picked up on the animal's horns and carried through the orchard a distance of thirty feet. A neighbor came to the rescue and after a desperate encounter with the enraged deer, in which Mrs. Crawford took a hand, it was secured with ropes, tied to a tree and shot. During the encounter Mr. Crawford's leg was punctured in two places by the horns of the animal.

Peculiar and Painful Accident.

W. H. Bridges of El Verano met with a peculiar and painful accident Sunday evening. His mare, which was running loose, in some unaccountable manner got one of her hind legs entangled in a long strand of barbed wire and in an effort to free herself became frantic and ran away. Bridges saw the animal coming toward him and before he could get out of harm's way the barbed wire caught him around the legs, badly lacerating both limbs. The maddened animal then continued its wild fight but was soon caught and extricated from the cruel wire, but not until one of the animal's hind legs had been cut to the bone.

Mr. Bridges injuries were attended to by Dr. Leix, who took five stitches in one leg and three in the other in order to close the deep cuts.

Dr. A. J. Bateman, the veterinary surgeon, attended to the injured horse, which may be permanently crippled, as the cut on the leg is a bad one.

Blockmaker's Cabin Burned.

A cabin on Battery Hill, belonging to S. Schocken, was destroyed by fire last Wednesday night between 8 and 9 o'clock. The cabin was used by blockmakers employed in the quarries north of town, but had been unoccupied for some time.

The origin of the fire is unknown but it is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

On motion of Trustee McDonell, seconded by Trustee Bates, a warrant in the sum of $712.50 was ordered drawn in favor of Mrs. Martha T. Stearns on account of the bond and interest fund of the New City Hall.

On motion of Trustee McDonell, seconded by Trustee Quartaroli, the Masonic building committee was granted permission to lay a 4-inch pipe across First-street West opposite the new Masonic building for the purpose of draining rain water into the open ditch at that point.

On motion of Trustee Wagnon, seconded by Trustee McDonell the Electric Light Committee was authorized to change the location of the street lights on Broadway.

Miss Emily G. Kurtz, for many years a teacher in the Summit Joint district in this valley, has been granted a life diploma by the State Board of Education.

Dr. and Mrs. Eastland intended going to San Francisco on Tuesday, but at the last hour the doctor failed to get a relief clerk and was unable to get away.

Miss Eunice Albrecht, one of Schellville's popular young ladies, who has been suffering quite severely with blood-poisoning of one of her hands, is now out of danger and improving rapidly.

Tony Baccala Again in Business.

Tony Baccala, after having his Bridge Saloon under lease the past year, has again assumed charge of the property and will conduct it under his own name. Mr. Baccala has the reputation of being one of our most reliable business men and a successful caterer and we predict for the Bridge Saloon resort much success under his management.

N. Borgunda of Sears' Point has been granted permission by the Board of Supervisors to erect a wharf on Midshipman's slough.

State and County Taxes.

The State and County taxes for the year 1909-10 will be due and payable at the office of County Tax Collecter Collins in Santa Rosa next Monday. The first installment will become delinquent on the last Monday in November, which according to the poet is one of the saddest days in the year. Particularly will this be so if one allows that installment to go delinquent, as in that event 15 per cent will be added to the amount due. Better paste this in your hat and by all means pay up at your local bank or drop in and see the tax collector at his office at the county seat.

A SECOND WILL FOUND IN DRAWER.

Mrs. Lubeck Left a Second Will Which Was Filed for Probate Monday---Differs But Little from the First.

A second will of the late Mrs. A. B. Lubeck of Locust Grove was discovered among other papers in a chest of drawers in her old home, one day last week, and filed for probate in the Superior Court of this county last Monday.

The newly-discovered will differs but little from the one filed for probate several weeks ago. As stipulated in the first will the bulk of decedent's estate, valued at several thousand dollars, goes to Miss Belle Landsborough.

A. A. Sanderson, attorney for Miss Landsborough, who filed the previous will, made a motion in court Monday that the petition for probate be dismissed. This was done and the newly-discovered will took its place on the file.

A Popular Resort for Sportsmen

Ben Meyers, a well-known caterer of San Francisco, has leased the Embarcadero Hotel, near Schellville, and the popular resort will henceforth be known as "Ben's Place." This hotel has always been a noted rendezvous for hunters and fishermen. Ducks and other water fowl abound in the near-by tules, while valley quail, rabbits and other game can be bagged in the surrounding fields and hills. Trout, catfish, bass and other tide water fish afford great sport for fishermen, as they swarm in Sonoma creek and the numerous sloughs in the near vicinity. The season is now open, and we take pleasure in recommending Ben's Place to our sporting friends all over the State.

Firemens Ball.

The members of the Sonoma Volunteer Fire Department have posters out announcing a grand ball at Union Hall this (Saturday) evening. The ball is given by the fire laddies for the benefit of the Plaza Fund and everybody should turn out and help the good work along.

Vineyardists Rejoice.

The weather the past week has been favorable for wine grapes and the despondent vineyardist of a week ago is now rejoicing, as had there been a repetition of the stormy weather of last week the wine grape crop would have been all but ruined. The weather cleared up Tuesday and a brisk breeze prevailed Wednesday and Thursday and dispelled the excessive moisture in the vineyards, since which time vineyardists have been harvesting their grapes and hauling them to the wineries with increased forces of men. Owing to the favorable turn in the weather but slight damage was done to wine gaapes in this valley by the recent rains.

The Metropolitan Stock Company plays a return engagement at Union Hall in this place for three nights, beginning, Wednesday evening, October 13th.

This excellent theatrical troupe has lately made a big hit in Santa Rosa and Petaluma, playing to crowded houses in both cities.

Since its appearance here the company has secured additional strength in Mr. Harry Belmour and Miss Etta Delmas, formerly of the Frank Cooley Co., later with Terry McKeene's players. Both are prime favorites in Sonoma.

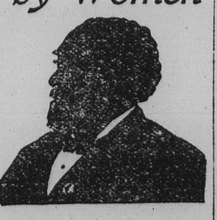
Robert Selman and Miss Nellie Lynn are decidedly clever and popular leading people, long appreciated in Petaluma and Santa Rosa.

"Brother Against Brother" will be produced Wednesday evening; "The Private Secretary," Thursday; "The Maid and Butler," Friday.

Popular prices. Reserved seats, 35 cents; general admission, 25c.

The S. F. daily Chronicle and Index-Tribune $9 a year for both papers.

Honored by Women



When a woman speaks of her silent secret suffering she trusts you. Millions have bestowed this mark of confidence on Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. Everywhere there are women who bear witness to the wonder-working, curing-power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—which saves the suffering sex from pain, and successfully grapples with woman's weaknesses and stubborn ills.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG
IT MAKES SICK WOMEN WELL.

No woman's appeal was ever misdirected or her confidence misplaced when she wrote for advice, to the WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets induce mild natural bowel movement once a day.

He Was the Same Man.

A prominent merchant of Sheffield recently accosted a gentleman on the street with:

"Good morning, Mr. Johnson. How is coal today?"

"Well," responded the other, "I am not much acquainted with the coal market, but I can ascertain the price if it will accommodate you."

"I beg pardon," laughed the merchant. "I really thought you were Mr. Johnson, the coal dealer. You certainly resemble him."

A few days later the merchant entered a tram car and, seating himself beside a gentleman, exclaimed heartily:

"Well, Mr. Johnson, I'm glad to recognize you today. I made a laughable mistake one day last week. I mistook another man for you and, addressing him very familiarly, asked how coal was. He looked amused and replied that he did not know much about coal, but would inquire if it would accommodate me. Then I looked at him and saw that he was a perfect stranger. It really was laughable, Mr. Johnson, but he looked so much like you."

"Yes," responded the gentleman, looking more amused, "and I am that same party again."

The merchant recognizes no more coal dealers.—London Tit-Bits.

A Rare Autograph.

"What is the most expensive autograph you ever sold?" inquired the reporter.

"That of Thomas Lynch, Jr.," answered the dealer. The reporter looked perfectly blank. "Never heard of him," he confessed.

"Well, he was a signer of the Declaration of Independence. He signed it as proxy for his father, who was ill at the time. Soon after he went to sea and was never heard of again. Now, autographs of Declaration signers are much sought by collectors. None approach in rarity those of Thomas Lynch, Jr. In fact, so far as I know, there is only one in existence.

"This is affixed to an autograph letter addressed by Lynch to George Washington, which lends it additional value. It was owned at one time by Jared Sparks, president of Harvard college. Subsequently it passed to Thomas Addis Emmet, from whom I bought it for the sum of $4,000. I sold it to Augustin Daly, who was a keen autograph collector, for $4,500. Later Emmet repented of letting the autograph go from his possession and secured it from Daly for $5,250, presenting it afterward to the Lenox library, New York, where it is now."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Origin of "Boz."

The origin of "Boz" is known to most readers interested in Dickens. A younger brother of the novelist was known in the family circle as Moses, in facetious allusion to one of the characters in the "Vicar of Wakefield," and this being pronounced in fun through the nose became "Boses" and so "Boz," which Dickens adopted as his early pen name. "Boz," he once wrote, "was a very familiar household word to me long before I was an author, and so I came to adopt it.

Before the real name of "Boz" became well known somebody invented and circulated the following smart epigram:

Who the Dickens "Boz" could be
Puzzled many a curious elf
Till time unveiled the mystery
And "Boz" appeared as Dickens' self.

Hood wrote punningly, but ungrammatically:

Aren't that 'ere "Boz" a tiptop feller?
Lots write well, but he writes Weller.
—London Globe.

Thanked His Stars.

When the French revolution broke out a number of scientists lost their lives, but Lalande, the astronomer, only paid the more attention to the skies and its constellations. When he found, after the reign of terror, that he had escaped the fury of the mob he exclaimed gratefully, "I may thank my stars for it." Would any apparent jest possess more genuine truth?

Allison tells how during Napoleon's Egyptian campaign no sooner were the mamelukes observed at a distance than the word was given, "Form square; artillery to the angles; asses and savans to the center." The command afforded no little merriment to the soldiers even at such an exciting moment and made them call the asses demisavans.

Located.

Diogenes, lantern in hand, entered the village drug store. "Say, have you anything that will cure a cold?" he asked.

"No, sir, I have not," answered the pill compiler.

"Give me your hand," exclaimed Diogenes, dropping his lantern. "I have at last found an honest man."

A Wayside Philosopher.

"How'd you like to be a senator?" inquired the first wanderer.

"I'd like it first rate," responded the second wayfarer. "Still, a hobo's life has got its good points. He ain't got no constituents to kick about his inactivity."—Kansas City Journal.

Good Tree, Poor Crop.

"I suppose you know of my family tree?" said Baron Fucash.

"Yep," answered Mr. Cumrox. "It may have been a good tree, all right, but it looks to me as if the crop was a failure."—Washington Star.

Why He Was Deaf.

Scene—Stable of Scottish village inn. Landlord is busy repairing a piece of harness and is carrying on at the same time a conversation with the village blacksmith. Enter farmer.

Farmer—Look here, landlord! Can ye gie me a bottle o' yer best whisky?

Landlord—Weel, ye see, the horses are a' out, an' I dinna ken when ony o' them 'll be hame.

Farmer—It's no a horse I want; it's a bottle o' whisky.

Landlord—Aye; but, ye see, they're a guid bit awa', an' it'll be late before the first o' them's back.

Farmer (louder)—I tell ye, it's no' a horse, but a bottle o' whisky, I want.

Landlord—Weel, ye see, the beasts 'll be tired, an'—

Farmer—Gang awa' wi' ye an' yer beasts!

Exit.

Blacksmith—Man, John, ye're gettin' as deaf as a doorpost. It wasna' a horse, but a bottle o' whisky, the man was askin' for.

Landlord—Ou, aye. I heard him fine, but he didna' pay for the last bottle he got.—Pearson's Weekly.
